

Season 1, Sequel 1

Alien's early memories of growing up with its intelligent, mind-reading spaceship

The little green alien, a story about an alien mind player and how everything came together very early.

So one day this alien thought about its first memories in his spaceship, and asked the toddler: what are your first memories? The toddler said, yeah, I remember getting food from my mother on her lap, from a big bottle, yummy. And the alien says: I remember getting energy from my spaceship. So, what are my first memories? I remember waking up in the spaceship, and in my mind was a big smile, a very nice, empathic smile. It was nice. And someday I had a question: what is that smile? And then I got the idea in my mind that that is my relationship to my spaceship. The spaceship smiles, I smile, we are both together very happy. And I continued to sleep, listened to nice music and enjoyed that. That was the beginning.

Then later, later, later, one day I had a wish. I wished for something to play with, yeah, this colorful thing. And the spaceship, which has a direct connection to me, created this colorful ball for me to play with. Here we are, that's what the spaceship does for me. But another time I had a very destructive idea: I wanted to have a hammer to destroy vases. But what did the spaceship do? It created two vases with beautiful flowers for me, no hammer. So that was my first lesson: I can wish things in my mind, the spaceship may or may not create them for me. It was a very early, early lesson that I have to play my mind, so that the spaceship can deal with it, read it, and knows exactly what's going on in my mind. Interesting.

So that means the little alien had to learn very early how to play its mind, so that the spaceship could deal with it and doesn't get confused, and everything works mind to mind, spaceship mind to alien mind. Interesting.
