

Season 1, Sequel 3

Alien playfully explores how things work and spaceship often surprises.

The little green alien continues its story about its first adventures with the spaceship, the mind-reading, intelligent spaceship that it came together with at its first memories.

What did it do? Yes, it thinks of things, like thinking of a ball that it could roll down a hill. And what does the spaceship do? Yes, it creates a ball and some bricks so that it can build a hill. That's fun. It has so much fun with that, puts the ball there and lets it roll. That's funny.

Then it comes to the idea to have just a bigger, longer hill, just long, long, long. What happens? Yeah, the spaceship creates it, but it's boring and gray and not any bigger than before, because it's not a great idea. So it thinks more about what it could do, and comes up with the idea of a track, a track with curves. And what does the spaceship do? It creates bricks for it, bricks with rills for balls, so that it can build different types of tracks. That's fun.

And then it comes with the idea to put obstacles on the hill, so that the balls click here, tick there, and go all kinds of weird routes down the hill. But what does the spaceship do? Look at that, it gets something with many, many balls and regular obstacles, and whatever way it puts down the balls, they all come in the same pattern. Oh, that's interesting.

The next idea: have two balls falling at the same time, and see whether one is faster, reaches earlier, and flips the rocker. The spaceship gives it another option, it has some sensors, or four sensors, which measure the speed of the ball. And then it gives it different balls, different sizes, different weights, different shapes. And wow, they all have the same speed.

But that's enough, it wants to have some fun. Little alien wants to have fun. So it wants to fall itself, the spaceship goes up, gives it a parachute, and wow, fun! And as a closing, spaceship creates a roller coaster for little alien. Hey, wow, that's great fun, and it continues, three loops. Yeah, working with the spaceship is really fun for little alien. Wow, relaxing, enjoying, and lots of fun. That's how it should be.
