

Season 2, Sequel 2

Why are Billy (Billie) and Alien so confused and sad?

Time has passed and little alien came back to Earth with its intelligent spaceship. In our modern world we would call that spaceship an artificial intelligence, but for the little alien it's just the intelligent spaceship that was around all the time since it was born.

And it is meeting the toddler again, let's call him or her Billy (Billie), the one that it met years, years ago, now an adult. And they talk about what they are thinking about.

And Billy says that he's very confused. The news are always conflicts and disputes and chaos. On the phone you get movies from this and from that, some people are just on beauty and others are on conflicts. On TV you see war and you see conflict and you see trouble. And Billy explains that he has confusion in his head and a sadness in his heart, and deep in the center of the body it feels the heavy weight of this confusing and difficult situation. Cannot make sense of it. Billy doesn't know what to do and what his or her role is in this.

If Billy looks at other people, yeah, there are groups of people: some are as confused as Billy is, which is at least helpful and relaxing a little bit. Others are angry, they are against something, or try to fight, or they shout, very angry and expressing their anger. And others just have the solution, one simple solution, very different ones, but all have one and they just like that.

And little alien explains there's another aspect: nature. Little alien is upset about the nature on planet Earth, which is reducing and going down and in danger. The diversity is going down and the whole planet Earth, with its climate and also with its biodiversity, is at risk. This wonderful, beautiful planet.

And the spaceship is adding something that both don't understand so well, from a network where everything is connected to everything and changing all the time, from a fish swarm that is bigger and stronger than a single fish, from the evolution of species not only to man but to all kinds of diverse animals and plants. And they try to find what is going on here, what is the point they should consider deeper.

Yeah, they come to the conclusion: they feel like standing at the river shore, the lake is dark and confusing, and stuff is bubbling up there. There seems to be a little central question deep in there for them that is bubbling up. They have to find it.
